JUSTICE LEAGUE 02 - 19/10/2011

A NEW WORLD ORDER

At the center of DC COMICS The New 52 is the JUSTICE LEAGUE, and in the way that Geoff Johns had to structure a story that would reintroduce the World's Greatest Heroes, Jim Lee had to establish the look that would set the tone for what would be a younger and more contemporary set of heroes. This would not be your dad's JUSTICE LEAGUE.

GREEN LANTERN: Here's an earlier, far more complicated version of the suit that was rejected earlier on. Design elements made their way into other non-Justice League characters, though...can you spot 'em?

AQUAMAN: A more crustacean-looking armor was considered but ultimately deemed to be too detailed and "crusty" a look for the regal, majestic King of the Seven Seas. Maybe an Atlantean foot soldier will carry this mantle...

WONDER WOMAN: There was much debate on Princes Diana's leg wear. This one denotes some deadly accessories.
